ABOUT THE ARTIST

Carrie Lacey Boerio is a full-time artist who makes radiant paintings with oil and acrylic ink. She finds her inspiration in nature, being drawn visually and emotionally to florals and landscapes. She paints outdoors and in her studio in Columbus, Ohio. A Pittsburgh native with a degree in communications from the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Carrie transitioned to her art career after working at local and national nonprofits serving vulnerable children. Her art can be found in private and public collections across the United States and abroad.

Carrie is self-taught but has studied with professors from Columbus College of Art and Design and The Ohio State University. She has also learned from workshops with professional artists across the U.S. and abroad.

ARTIST STATEMENT

"The best parts of my childhood were spent wandering my aunt and uncle's wooded acres in Pennsylvania and working at their nursery and greenhouse. It was a place of natural beauty, calm and unconditional love. Those experiences compound my joy in painting florals and landscapes and infuse my work with optimism.

My painting process is a meditative one where I enjoy the luxury of taking my time. The more I look, the more I see. I am particularly obsessed with the clear, radiant color nature offers with flowers in bloom and fall color. It's like painting sunlight through stained glass. I enjoy exploring this in both the intense transparency of acrylic inks and the beautiful versatility of oils.

My biggest artistic influences are Charles Reid's watercolors and Euan Uglow's oils. I also admire the work of my artist daughter, Michelle Boerio. Her work is incredible fresh and confident."
