FINE ART OIL AND WATERCOLOR PAINTINGS OF
COASTAL MAINE
BY SARAH GRIFFIN THIBODEAUX

Debuts August 30, 2025

Summer in Coastal Maine evokes all the pleasures of summer. Your feet on lush grass. Verdant landscape thick with trees. A blue green ocean rich with fresh seafood. On the harbor, the lobster boats hum in the early mornings before sunrise. Life is in perfect rhythm of the tides, the seasons.

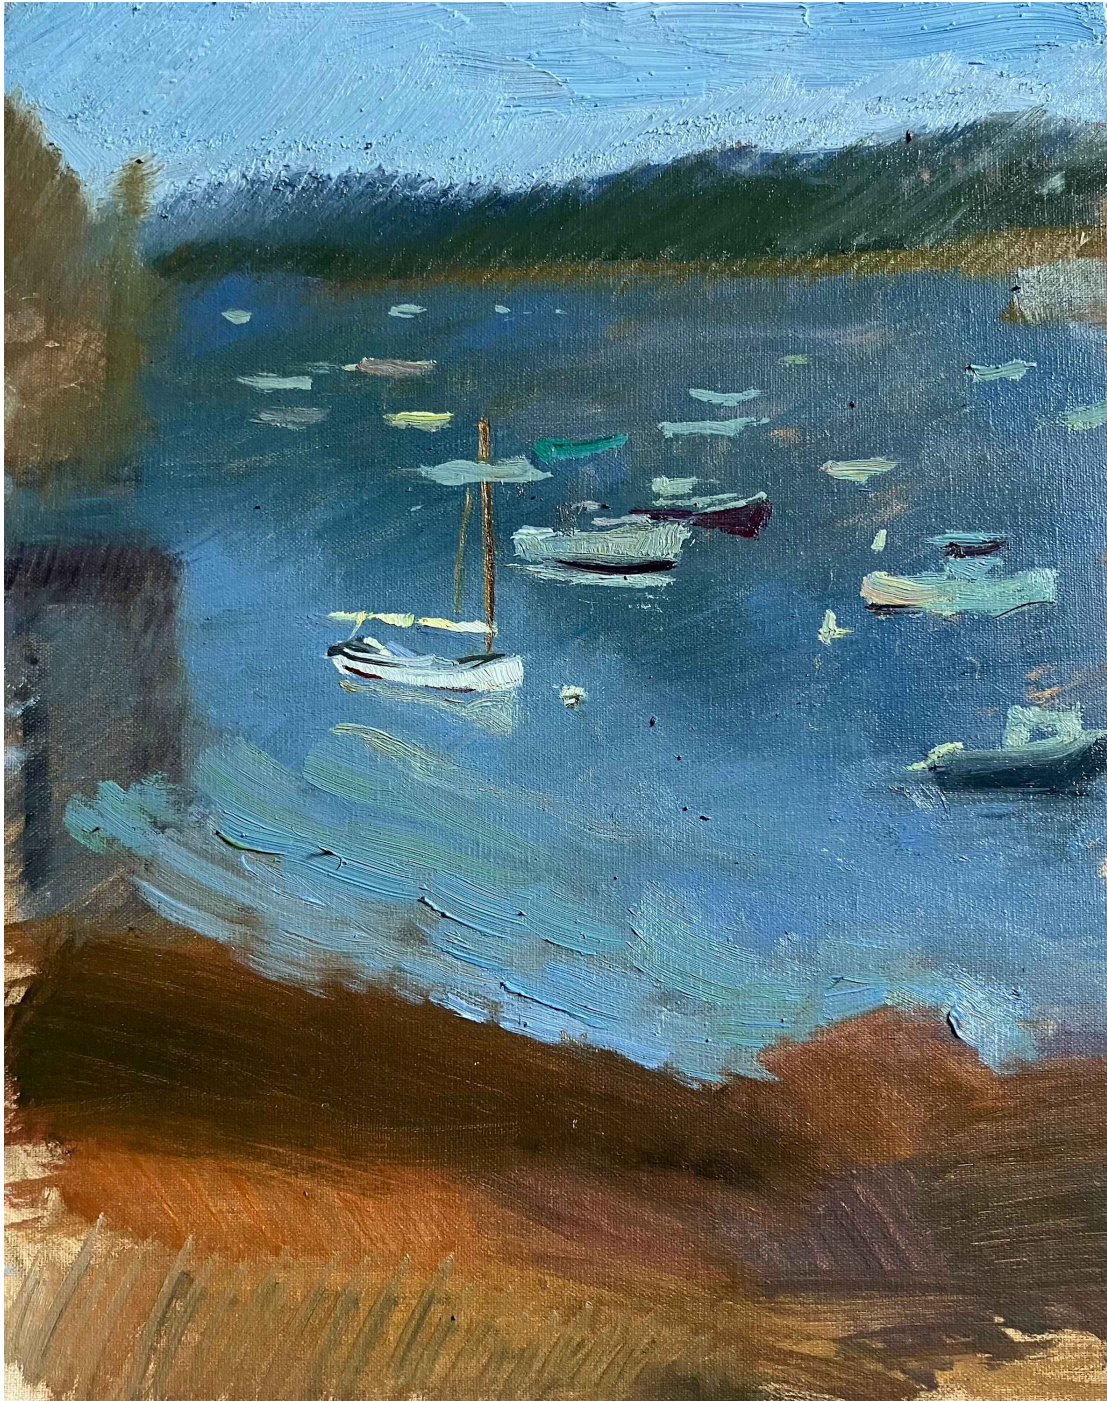

Like in New Orleans, where weather can change in an instant, Maine's landscape is constantly changing. Fog gives way to warm sunlight. A storm sweeps in, stealing the light. This constant change provides a setting to pay attention. To the hum of life all around us. This set of paintings is Sarah Griffin Thibodeaux's work over the last four years, as she has explored the area of Mount Desert Island close to Acadia National Park.

What is noticeable most about the landscape is the buzzing of nature. The number and variety of insects. The crispness of the air. A harbor porpoise surfaces in the early morning sunrise in the harbor. A minx darts across the rocks.

The colors of the Maine coast are constantly changing. There is always a dash of silver in the sky and a hint of gold in the setting sun. But it is the great variety of colors and shapes the landscape of rocks and coast and sea can make. It is a constant rush of action in rhythm with the tides and the seasons. The artist strives to capture that feeling of rushing water, of fog over calm sea, and of safe harbor

. I hope you enjoy these pieces.
